

#COMBATCOVID SMME SURVEY

APRIL 2020

BROUGHT TO YOU BY HEAVY CHEF IN COLLABORATION WITH RETAIL CAPITAL, PAYFAST, XERO, YOCO, WHIPPING THE CAT & WORKSHOP 17

In April 2020 a collective of stakeholders servicing small businesses in South Africa surveyed small business owners to assess the impact COVID-19 interventions have had to date on their livelihoods. The survey was conducted among 2,280 small business owners using a convenience sampling methodology. We have summarised the results into 4 categories - Money, Support, People & Adaptability - that shine a light on the state of their businesses during this pandemic.

MONEY

No business is safe from the negative financial impact of COVID-19 interventions. Even though 2/3 of small businesses surveyed are 'mature' business (meaning, older than 3 years with healthy monthly revenue streams), 89% of them indicated a sharp decrease in monthly income. 33% of them estimated a monthly decline of between 75%-100%. 3 out of 4 small business owners, across industries, sadly indicate that their business will not survive prolonged lockdown restrictions beyond 1 July 2020.

SUPPORT

Small businesses seem to be cynical about the COVID-19 relief options available to them. Less than half surveyed have applied for relief from government, banks or other financial institutions. Of those that have applied 68% were unsuccessful in their applications. Some of the relief options that were able to support them include the South Africa Future Trust, Debt Relief Fund and SMME Relief Finance Facility. 71% expect that they will require business funding when COVID-19 restrictions are relaxed; more than half indicate they will need less than R100, 000 of funding.

PEOPLE

Small businesses are trying their best to avoid their precarious position to not impact their staff. 1/3 of those surveyed indicated that they are paying their employees as usual even if they are not working currently. 81% have indicated that they have not retrenched staff as yet. Unfortunately, the current financial reality cannot stop the collateral damage in its entirety. 71% said that a prolonged state of lockdown will make it likely that they will need to start retrenchment processes. 66% had to reduce staff salaries due to COVID-19 interventions already. 1/3 of which reduced salaries between 75%-100%.

ADAPTABILITY

Small businesses had to adapt quickly and decisively. 1/4 of them indicated that they are attempting to trade in some way or form. 54% work remotely and are using technology - in particular messaging and video conferencing platforms - to streamline their processes. Immediate cost cutting interventions include reductions in stock purchases, marketing, rental, travel and transport, insurance cover and many more. The impact of the pandemic and efforts to 'flatten the curve' already has led to 1/3 of small businesses to change their business model. More than half that have not yet changed their business model, expect that they will be forced to do this soon.
